

I oppose loosening the rules designed to promote and protect diversity of media ownership. These rules were adopted to ensure that the public would receive a diverse range of viewpoints from the media, and not simply the opinions of a handful of media conglomerates.

To FCC:

If anything FCC rules should be written to encourage more t.v. and radio broadcasting at a community level--not playing to the whims of needs of the big time media conglomerates. There was a shameful incident recently in Berkeley California where a long-time f.m. radio broadcaster was harrassed by federal law enforcement personnel. If Powell, the head of the FCC was truly on the side of the community, he would publicly condemn such display of bullying, intimidation, and downright closing down of alternate forms of free press expression. But then, what can one expect of someone appointed by a President who stole his way to power.....
